Thomas Kampe has worked with movement for the last 20 years. He worked as performer, choreographer and director in Germany and Britain and works as senior lecturer for dance at London Metropolitan University. He has taught somatic approaches towards movement education mainly for performers in different settings around the world. He is a teacher of the 'Feldenkrais Method', which forms the foundation for his teaching in Contact Improvisation. www.kampe.de

Contact Improvisation and the Feldenkrais Method

In this workshop we will use exercises and concepts drawn from the 'Feldenkrais Method' to explore and refine solo movement skills allowing participants to expand their movement vocabularies and to deepen their practice of Contact Improvisation. We will use guided solo explorations and hands-on partner explorations to develop a state of detailed listening and connectedness with ourselves, our environment and with our partner. This will lead into refined sensory dialogues through touch - developing into delightful and expansive Contact Improvisation dancing. www.kampe.de

Stephanie Mather spent 10 years in San Francisco after her New York modern/classical training studying deeper and wider the many forms of multi-disciplinary forms of motion, improvisation, the voice and image making in performance and community based art. Home is K77 studios, Berlin and Stolzenhagen, Ponderosa Tanz Festival. A collaborative history with Kathleen Hermeszort, Ka Rustler, Jess Curtis, Sten Rudstrom ... www.k77.de

Telling up a class that focuses on the sensation of falling up, of a lightness that we acquire by riding the ground, rotating under it and flying softly through the air. Concentration and training on a soft alignment and a continued sense of lifting the upside down world with motion. We will work steadily and fluidly on our hands. We will support our partners with making opening spaces in our selves to catch and support them as smartly as we can! www.k77.de

Jess Curtis is a director and performer of interdisciplinary dance/performance. Working independently, and in the collective performance groups Cahin-Caha, Cirque Ballard (France/USA 98-Present), Core (USA 94-98), and Contraband (USA 85-94). He has created and collaborated on numerous award-winning performance works known for their intense physicality, emotional honesty and athletic beauty. In 2000 he founded Gravity Physical Entertainment as a research and development vehicle for very live performance. Gravity aspires to the creation of exceptionally engaging physical entertainment that explores and addresses issues and ideas of substance and relevance to a broad popular public. Jess has received three Isadora Duncan Dance awards, was a recipient of the prestigious 2001 California Dancemakers Fellowship and recently was awarded a Fringe First Award at the Edinburgh Fringe Festival for his latest work, fallen. www.jessc.com

precision Contact A skills-based Contact Improvisation workshop for those that want to increase the control and precision in their dance. Working from the floor to flying with technique and discipline. We will address and practice 1) the modulation of speed, 2) the development of 360° awareness, 3) control during inversion, supporting and riding, 4) sensitivity to the floor, 5) integration of multiple foci, and 6) extending the variety of qualities in your dancing and your ability to move easily and intentionally between them. ## Wednesday

Adrian Russo is a CI-teacher, performer and bodytherapist, involved in CI since 1992. His performance work is based on free improvisation including dance, dance-theatre, voice and live music. In his teaching he is focusing on the technical aspects of CI as well as on matters of sensation, perception and creativity coming from a distinct body-awareness.

beyond gravity In this class the intention will be leaving behind the body's heaviness in order to play easily with our weight in the 3-dimensional field of gravity. The dancing may be close to the floor, change quickly through all levels or take place in the upper space: we will aim continuously at letting it happen in a effortless and safe way. www.k77.de

Alicia Grayson has had a love affair with CI for the past 15 years and yoga for the past 18 and has taught for the past 11. She has taught Yoga and taught and performed CI in the U.S., Canada and in Europe at jams, workshops and Universities.

yoga for contact beginning with a 'Yoga based' warm up we will fluidly transition into dancing. We will explore principles such as grounded lightness and integrity in our Yoga practice and experience how when applied to Contact Improvisation they can open the door to deeply satisfying dances. www.k77.de

Karl Jay Lewin is a dancer/choreographer based in Findhorn, Scotland. He is passionate about CI & has taught it for 8 years. Much of his recent teaching work has been enthusiastically introducing new comers to the delights of Contact Improvisation.

the listening body we will investigate distinctions between different methods and qualities of moving in contact, and use this investigation to drop into a state of attentive physical listening. Developing this listening and sensitivity to each other, we will allow our curiosity and fascination to guide us around the landscapes of the body – as they dynamically roll, slide, give support and rise up around each other – some trio work. www.k77.de

Anouk Laurents is a choreographer, a dance teacher and a performer based in London. She has been dancing since 25 years and practicing numerous techniques from Ballet to Contact Improvisation. Her interest as a teacher and a performer is to cultivate the body as a vehicle for change.

moving space to the right I propose to – breath to make space – reach out to make space – spiral to make space – take information from the outside world to make space – and expand the volume of our body-mind-dance, enjoy the experience of being light – be yourself and with others, playing with the space in between. www.k77.de

Khosro Adibi is a multidisciplinary artist working as teacher, performer, director, video/photographer and light/stage designer for dance/theatre. Khosro Adibi graduated in fine arts from HKU (Hogeschool voor de Kunsten Utrecht, 1990-1995). He studied dance at SNDO (School for New Dance Development in Amsterdam, 1997-1998) as well as in New York City (1999-2000).

performing Contact a musician can play music by forgetting their instrument, otherwise they only play the instrument. A dancer (especially a contact dancer) must forget their body to move and be in the moment with others. Starting from not-knowing, we will work on sensitivity towards the instrument (the body), playing with different tones in the body, rhythm in movement, 3-D body awareness (eyes in the back of your head) and technical aspects of CI. www.k77.de

Having discovered dance in the late 80ies, Christine Mauch continues to passionately practice CI and different forms of bodywork. Studies with Nancy Stark Smith, Lisa Nelson, Kirstie Simson and her Authentic Movement group have largely influenced her work in the last years. She teaches regularly at K77 studios in Berlin.

controlling the progression warming up gently to touch and movement alone and with the help of a partner, this class works towards grounding and enriching the dance in clear connection both to gravity and lightness. www.k77.de

Thursday

Gaby Koch is working as a dancer, choreograph and movement-pedagogue. She dances since she is 5 years old. After classical and modern dance she discovered contemporary dance, improvisation and CI to find her pleasure in playing, exploring and freedom in dance. Since 1995 she works as a free-lance dancer and teacher since 1996 technique and improvisation.

flying walk how to find the momentum for lifting, how to find trust to let go, even in high speed? Dynamica and playfulness, feeling gravity allow to get lightness to fly. From learning concrete lifts, we experiment to get the momentum out of the flow, without forcing and integrate it into our dance. www.k77.de

Heilke Bruns passion for Contact Improvisation since 1990, certified practitioner of Body-Mind-Centering. A capella motion in USA with Nancy Stark Smith, research project about Contact Improvisation and musicality over two years, wrote the book: 'All the beginning, there was touch', teaching CI, BMC and New Dance over ten years.

the flow in your dance we listen to the music within our dance, start to play with timing, rhythm and dynamic. We surprise ourselves with sudden stops, accents or tender movements. Working with breathing and making sounds will support us in our process. www.k77.de

Helen Roberts I have studied and practiced dance and music for thirty years. My main teachers at Darlington College were Mary Fulerson and Steve Paxton. I use Release work as the basis for my teaching and practice in dance technique and Contact Improvisation.

whole space is a means by which one can extend the body periphery in working with a partner and into the wider space. www.k77.de

Jovair Longo is a dance artist originally from Brazil. His work involves both performing and teaching. As a dancer, apart from developing his own work, he has worked mostly in England, with Yolande Snaith. He regularly teaches his work to different dance companies in the UK including Scottish Dance Theatre and Diversion Company. He has also taught in different schools and at the present teaches at London Contemporary Dance School and London Metropolitan University. He has recently toured Winterspace with Igloo and performed at the Liverpool Improvisation Festival, and will be dancing in the next production of Yolande Snaith Dance theatre in 2004.

round body an exploration of a model for the body to increase its three-dimensionality and bring awareness of arms and legs in Contact dance. www.k77.de

Caroline Waters is an independent dance theatre practitioner dedicated to CI and the craft of improvisation in performance. Originally trained by Steve Paxton, she has over the past 20 years been developing her collaborative practice with artists from many continents and art forms.

developing strength from within referencing Ki-aikido work, one of the basic source materials for CI. We will be working to recognize the difference between dancing with muscle or energy, experiencing a satisfactory way to achieve a solid, safe point of contact. To roll from the floor to the sky. www.k77.de

Bernd Enderlein studied from 1989 till 1993 at the "European Dance Development Center" (EDDC) in Amstel (NL). He is a Shiatsu-practitioner since 1991. He is interested not only in the physical side of contact but also in the emotional, psychological and spiritual side – "life and dance is one". Further more he initiates and organizes international Contactevents, -jams and teaches since 12 years. He is one of the founders and organizers of the "contactfestival freiburg".

Contact & Shiatsu this is a laboratory to explore qualities of touch and boundaries within CI. Contact is a dance, Shiatsu is a massage practice. We will look on CI with "Shiatsu eyes". There are terms like: How deep do I sink into the touch, how long do I stay, in which rhythm do I work. From this point of view isn't CI a continuous treatment in which the movers get the touch they like to get? In CI we find a greater variety of qualities of touch than in Shiatsu. Here we can play with fluid or soft touch and also with surprising or pointed qualities. www.k77.de

Sarah Gray studied at Dartington College of Arts and the school for New Dance Development. She is involved in the practice of live performance of which the study of Contact improvisation has been a part of. She has been influenced by Kirstie Simson, Nancy Stark Smith, Katie Duck, Suprapto and meditation practice. Embodiment and presence are central to her work.

in and out of contact – the art of moving space this class will focus on finding ways in and out of contact. We will be looking at the solo inside the duet and asking, when are we ever out of contact with another. The class will start with where we are. We will bring attention to the present moment and the support that is there. We will learn to use this support to bring strength and flexibility into our dancing. www.k77.de

Friday

Konstantinos Minos has done all the usual things that every Contact dancer in Europe has done. Finishing dance training in his hometown, going to America as a pilgrim to study, buying loose pants after the first jam in Ps 122, coming home as a savior, teaching and softening hard fellow bodies, initiating the Athens jam, performing, assembling a dance company, organizing workshops and conferences, inviting dancers from abroad to dance his loneliness away. Every now and then he comes out of his country to see if anything has changed and meet some interesting new dancers.

every movement is an old story strangely enough, Greeks didn't invent Contact improvisation; but they gave to the world famous myths. This class is a chance for these expressions to meet. www.k77.de

Andrea Lutz is a dancer, improviser and teacher based in Berlin. Since 1995 she is teaching CI, Vinyasa-Yoga and Release technique. She has been working ardently with dance and improvisation for over 16 years now. Over the last couple of years, she participated in a number of independent productions and produced her own dance pieces.

centerwork we will start with centerwork to find strength, fluidity and relaxation within our bodies. We will be opening our perception to go deeper into our dance, alone and with partners. How can we keep our interest focused on what is going on in the moment? How can we find the small sensations, the details which make our dance rich, thrilling and powerful? We will work with basic physical and perceptual principles and techniques of Contact improvisation to help clarify and refine our dancing. www.k77.de

For 21 years, Patrick Crowley has been committed to movement and Contact improvisation as practice, technique, and performance. From the US, Patrick invites compassion, artistry, and depth through his teaching. www.k77.de body, mind and witness CI and Authentic Movement: How do we let sensations, images, emotions, and visions move us with all of our selves/cells? We will work in pairs with an eyes-closed mover who will embody their inner landscape and a "witness" who will "hold" a supportive "space" for the mover to fully arise for the mover. The witness will become active, moving both – not in contact and – in contact with their mover. www.k77.de

Saturday

Years ago Pen Dale left a career in more mainstream dance to explore the art of expression through improvisation. Her love of Contact has taken her far from her Australian home to the US, the UK, and Europe. Many fabulous teachers and many fabulous dances later, she looks forward to sharing her enthusiasm for the form at Freiburg. www.k77.de keeping the connection in this class we will look at the use of suspension, those exquisite moments that last an eternity... That moment where everything hangs, and you don't know how it will resolve. Not only will we play with the art of the little lift, feet skimming the ground in strong centre to centre connection, but we will also see how far we can push the boundaries, how far can we ride the edge of centre before tumbling over into who-knows-what????

Rossella Flumi: Choreographer, teacher, dance improviser and ZIP Sessions Oriente Festival – artistic director, she lives in Rome. She chose Oriente as the artistic venue for her own dance company. She has taught CI to children and dancers as daily training for professional dancers and actors since 1988. Own productions since '98. Her works have been shown in Italy and abroad. She has participated in European improvisational projects. Involved in teaching projects in Rome, she runs improv workshops for groups in the field of Gestalt Therapy. www.k77.de turning the corner I'm interested in navigating the field of improvisation, taking into consideration the sphere of emotions and its internal processes. The class is focused on our psycho-physical ability to proceed by successive choices, and the awareness of how we can invest space with our presence: why we feel like staying in a corner, and what, on the other hand, are the physical and metaphysical motives that bring our actions to the center. We will work out a spontaneous personal composition, using as a point of departure a sensation, a state of conscious, in-body-mind harmony. www.k77.de

Sarah Gray studied at Dartington College of Arts and the school for New Dance Development. She is involved in the practice of live performance of which the study of Contact improvisation has been a part of. She has been influenced by Kirstie Simson, Nancy Stark Smith, Katie Duck, Suprapto and meditation practice. Embodiment and presence are central to her work.
